BEWARE OF GIFT CARD SCAMS

Gift card scams work because gift cards are hard to trace and nearly impossible to recover once used. Scammers may reach out by phone, email, text, or social media, pretending to be the IRS, tech support, or even a friend or family member in trouble. They create urgency and demand payment with gift cards like Apple, Google Play, or Amazon. Once the card numbers are shared, the money is usually gone.

Simple Advice: Buy gift cards only for people you know and trust. Never purchase them because someone contacts you asking for payment. If something feels off, check with a trusted family member or friend before taking action.

KEY TAKEAWAY: If someone tells you to buy gift cards as payment, it is a scam.
